

Benefits Of Giving

Giving Grows on You

“I give because I care for the children.”

“I give because I appreciate their needs.”

“We give because we’ve been blessed.”

You Give…Because You Are a Giver.

We know the reasons why you give. The reasons you contribute financially to the children are the same reasons we work with them day in and day out. But the real reason you give when others don’t is that you have a loving, caring, giving heart. When you give to the children, you aren’t just meeting their needs for a day, you are giving them hope-filled futures and a chance to know what a family should be like.

Even though you don’t need any other reasons to give, you should certainly keep in mind that there are many financial advantages in charitable giving. To keep you informed, we keep our eyes on the methods of giving that give you tax advantages, future income and a lasting memorial. Just as other tax laws go through frequent changes, contribution rules change often. You may be able to take advantage of these rules to give and provide a useful tax shelter now and for years to come.
